

Latrobe, C. J. (1835)
pg. 179

I was informed by a gentleman in Tennessee of the existence of a singular and antique stone fort on the summit of a mountain in Franklin county, Alabama, near Little Bear Creek, a tributary of the Tennessee River, but have never read any notice of it. He stated that it was much damaged by the earthquakes of 1811-1812.